More in class time for homeworks
DO NOT make MJ the teacher. this is a lower level course yet he expects you to have abundant knowledge on the topics he can barely teach. He just reads of slides does not explain any of the code and when you ask him how to do something or you say you need help he scolds you on not knowing how to do it. He is a teacher thats what he is paid for to teach people things they do not know. I do not know how he does it but he somehow manages to make every class more unenjoyable than the last hes a good person but god awful teacher. The sad part is that is his job and hes not very good at it its almost as if he is to smart for the job. He expects way more from people than he should not all geniuses can teach ive experienced this countless times and its due to them not understanding that other people can be confused over things that they think are trivial. So in closing BAD teacher GREAT person!
Stronger emphasis on useful code files in the MIST352 repo.
I suggest having review sessions because I would attend every single one.
This might not be reasonable but, maybe implementing a coding game for like daily assignments or quizzes. It would just be a way to keep us entertained whilst learning the material! Overall had a great experience in class!

Make it a little more interactive. Could have work groups and have students do something while learning.
I like the course how it is because it was a pretty easy course but it still allowed for plenty of learning to take place which I think was great :)
More practicing code rather than going through slides
Object-oriented section of class was too fast paced

In class tasks
Nothing literally nothing this class was a slow boring slog where everyday just felt good because there would be one less day of class in total at the end of the miserable 50 minutes spent in the class
Applied assignments for java coding
The internet. This class was very sporadic and bounced around frequently which made it hard to learn at times. Class wasn't a total waste but I found myself learning more online.
The opportunities to get one on one help with assignments outside of class.
The in class tasks were very helpful due to the fact that the next homework would be related to the in class tasks!
The in class tasks and homeworks.
Doing in class tasks with professor to guide.
The in-class tasks were nice since MJ was there to help during them and he's very good at explaining concepts. Alongside this, homework was given out way before the due date which allowed me to work through the problem at my own pace.
Practicing code in class
Doing programming outside of the assignments
I learned how to be proficient in JAVA and learn the framework for how to code and use JAVA in any way I may need. I am glad I took this course becuase it gives me a leg up in interviews since they may not know java. The homework and in class tasks definitely make you think and problem solve. They are challenging and I would advise anyone to use resources and research outside of class to gain a better understanding in java.
